So I am pretty sure I found what pose I want to do for tomorrow after coloring.

I want to remember to define the shoulders and biceps when sketching, Jaeh does that.

Make sure the neck is longer than usual.

Flat elbows.

Just gosh, some of these people shade hair so damn well. I want to try that. Anatomy first, gotta have something good to color first.

I got the pose in mind found, my goal for today is to get the image done.

I have a lot of day to work with.

The secondary goal is to get a sketch of the same image but without hair and a face, and normal proportions and clothing.

It's going to be a fun pose and character. I look forward to it.

Golf was okay, I shot a bad score but I completed a goal of mine. 18 holes with no 3 putts. I even made a few long putts for par and a birdie. I'm not great at golf, but I'm able to hit some shots here and there.

That was my last round posting in my handicap, I am ending the year at a 11.6, the year started at a 17.1. My goal for next year is to be a 9.0 or lower golfer.
Getting food, home soon.

Its coming together nicely.

Going to line this and put it aside as the base one for critiques.

Break.

All done here. Throw in a little Vogue logo for style points.

I like how it came out!

I personally think she is very attractive.

Break.

Maybe not that video but an idea is doing a hard airbrush cause I noticed real life shadows come in soft and hard forms. Hard when light is blocked out almost completely and soft when light falls aside.

No more drawing for today, gotta be up early tomorrow.

Posting this soon.

I am just so flip floppy. Here is what I will do tomorrow, redo this picture from today with cel coloring and then try a softer multiply layer to give the illusion of gradually gaining shadows. Again, I think what Jaeh does is obtainable for me.

I will also try doing the cola image over with a hard airbrush for hard shadows, then soft airbrush for lighter shadows.

Anywho, good night all.
