Performance-Based Task

Pre-class assignment preparation

Prepare yourself to make a dialogue (role-play) including the following elements.
One of you will be an international student and your instructor will play the role of a local friend.
Use all previous tasks in this Unit to make a meaningful dialogue.

Scenario:

You need to talk with a friend about your family members, close friends, or yourself. Prepare to have a picture of your family for the conversation. In your conversation, you might need to talk about

- >> physical description
- >> how old they are
- >> personality traits
- >> your opinion about them
- >> free time and activities
- >> sport activities and interests
- >> their profession

fears

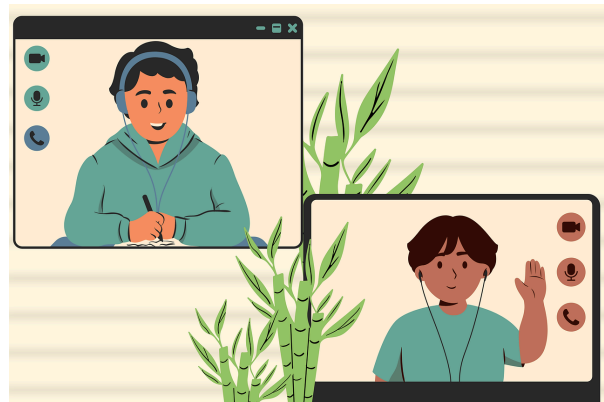

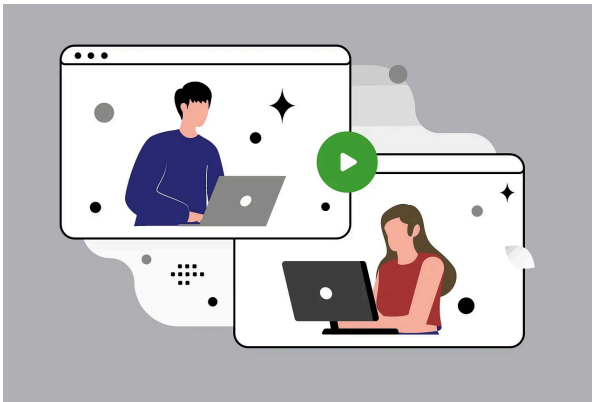

eating habits

In a conversation you will both need to ask additional clarification questions on the given topics and provide necessary comments. A friend might also ask more specific questions on any of the people you are talking about. This will be developed based on what you mention in your conversation.

In-class assignment

Listen to each of your classmates performing their dialogues. Take notes about their cultural performance in the table below. Your homework assignment will be to write a reflection on the cultural components that you noticed in each of your peers' dialogues. When your classmate writes a response to your own performance, you will need to provide them with a follow-up and comment on their reflection.

As a person who is evaluating your peers' performance, reflect on the following components:

1	Evaluate how successful they were in navigating the conversation in a culturally appropriate way. -
2	Did they recognize and-or use expressions that present a figurative meaning? -
3	Were they able to recognize, understand, and react to non-verbal cues in dialogues with the instructor? -
4	What else could they have done in performing real-life situational discourse?

| Post-class assignment

Submit your notes from the class session on your peers' performance. As a person who is reading responses from your peers, be sure to include in your comment:

- 1 Do you agree with them? If yes/no – why?
- 2 What will you do to improve (if needed) your future dialogues?
- 3 Any other comments?
