October 4, 2014 | 2014 news

We had a successful second PLAYDATE PD event today at John Marshall High School in Oklahoma City! Check out the saved links from our shared Google Doc, as well as the Storify archived tweets below. Photos are available in this Flickr set. Our next PLAYDATE will be Saturday, March 28, 2015, and will focus on coding. Both students and educators/parents are welcome to attend! (Get ready for Minecraft "show and tell" by students!) We are going to work on getting some sponsorships so we can meet in downtown OKC, possibly in the Boathouse District or at John Rex Elementary. Remember to plan to attend EdCampOKC on Saturday, February 28, 2015! FREE registration will be available soon via EventBrite when our location is confirmed. If you're not familiar with PLAYDATE events, check out the "backstory" page on our PLAYDATE OKC Google Site.

What is a PLAYDATE?

PLAYDATE OKC No presenters. No agendas. Just playing.

Explore the things you've never had time to explore!

Twitter Hashtags: #PLAYDATE14 #OklaEd

Cost: FREE

GOALS:

1. To provide an environment and facilitated opportunities for PK-20 educators to tinker with apps, web tools, and technology integration strategies.
2. To build a collaborative learning culture for educators in Oklahoma City.
3. To have fun together playing and learning with technology tools.

Is PLAYDATE right for you?

CAUTION

This isn't an event where

SOMEONE ELSE

will give you a

TUTORIAL OR DEMONSTRATION

Lessons Learned

Reflections & Questions

padlet

We give you a blank wall.
You put anything you want on it, anywhere.
Simple, yet powerful.
