In her Olympic debut at Rio 2016, Allison Beveridge was part of Canada's bronze medal in the team pursuit. Beveridge has been an integral member of the team pursuit since winning world championship silver in 2014. In 2015 she won a pair of world championship bronze medals, teaming with Lay, Glaesser and Steph Roorda to finish third in the team pursuit. She also finished third in the non-Olympic scratch race, coming back from a mid-race crash.

At the 2015 Pan Am Games, Beveridge won team pursuit gold with Glaesser, Lay and Laura Brown. She added a bronze medal in the road race. Beveridge has competed in both road and track cycling at the UCI World Junior Championships. She won the sprint jersey in stage one of the 2015 Tour of California before finishing fifth overall in the points classification.

Performance Stats:

Olympic Games: 2016 - BRONZE (team pursuit), 11th (omnium)

Pan American Games: 2015 – GOLD (team pursuit), BRONZE (road race)

Commonwealth Games: 2018 – BRONZE (team pursuit), 7th (scratch)
