Hard work pays off.

Big Idea

The big idea is to work hard and it always pays off. It took me a lot of time to draw my portfolio but it was worth it. I thought of what I should draw, and so I drew what I liked doing as a sport. Basketball. So I did my best to re-create a basket and with my name on it, which took me lots of time to create. I also drew so hard it took a lot of time, but in the end it was worth the wait. I also did a background blue because it kind of matches with green. Chris helped me draw so it could go faster if not it would have taken longer, but it was really good.

What are the fundamental differences between a “thoughtful” and a “thoughtless” critique?

A thoughtful one is more plan based and well done, while a thoughtless one is unplanned and it is more messy.

Can all people be artists?

Yes everyone can be artists, as art is not only drawing, everyone can do anything they put to their mindset, and everyone is given a certain advantage to do something they can, meaning everyone has certain limits to things they can do and to things they cannot do.

How to make an object 3 dimensional?

Make a fence around the letter then connect diagonal lines.

What is a theme?

A theme is a sentence and a main idea based around a topic.

How is a theme different than a topic?

A theme is more than a topic, it describes it while a topic is just a single thing, it doesn't describe what it is while the theme basically describes and explains the topic.
