

This image shows a blank sheet of graph paper. The paper is covered with a grid of small squares. There are several vertical lines drawn across the page, creating columns of varying widths. The grid is composed of small squares, and the vertical lines are spaced evenly across the width of the page.

The image shows a blank sheet of graph paper with a grid of 18 columns and 24 rows. The grid is composed of thin black lines forming a series of small squares. The columns are of varying widths: the first column is the narrowest, followed by two columns of equal width, then another narrow column, then two more columns of equal width, then another narrow column, then two more columns of equal width, then a wide column, then another narrow column, then two more columns of equal width, and finally a wide column on the far right. The rows are all of equal height and are evenly spaced throughout the page.
