Welcome to my Kingdom Death sleeve calculator!

This spreadheet can be used to help you figure out how many packs of sleeves and of what brands you can buy to sleeve your copy of Kindgom Death: Monster

The next sheet, Card Counts, has a list of everything that was in the 1.5 kickstarter along with how many of each type of card come with it. Please note that the card counts for the new 1.5 expansions are estimates based on what was revealed during the KS, and are subject to change.

The final sheet, Card Sleeves, has a table with some common presets so you can quickly compare some popular sleeve brands and see pricing trends. It also has a table where you can input your own card counts and mix and match available sleeve brands to find the best deal for your personal situation

How to use this spreadsheet

The best way to use this spreadsheet is to make a copy that you can edit. Don't request access to edit this sheet, there's too many people that use it so it would be chaos! Instead, do the following:

- Log into your google account (I know you have one :P)
 With this spreadsheet open go to File->Make a copy...
- Name it and save it to your google drive
 Make whatever changes you want, and enjoy!

Once you have your own copy of the spreadsheet you can go to the Card Counts sheet and change the Purchased? column to reflect what you own. For example, if I only purchased the Core Game and the Gorm expansion I would mark the Purchased? column next to them with a 'Y' and leave the rest of the items with a 'N'.

After you set up the Card Counts sheet with what you own, go to the Card Sleeves sheet and the Custom Card Counts table will be updated with the card totals for whatever combination of expansions you selected on the Card Counts sheet. You can then use the dropdowns directly over the card counts to change the sleeve brands for each type of card to find what combination suits you best. If the card numbers aren't to your liking for some reason (e.g. you already have some sleeves and want to subtract them out) you can input any numbers you want into that table. Overwriting what's there will break the integration with the Card Counts sheet though.

Once you know what sleeves you need you can find links to them in a list at the bottom of the Card Sleeves sheet. There are also brief descriptions of the sleeves and brand as a note on the cell that has the name of the sleeves. On mobile you may have to long press the cell and choose 'View note' to see it.

FAQ

What do the different types of cards referenced in this spreadsheet mean?

Game cards: the standard sized cards, present in hit location decks, Al decks, resources, etc. Shuffled frequently.

Gear cards: cards used for survivor gear, they're little squares.

Settlement Location cards: the cards used to represent places in the settlement, usually where you can craft gear or items.

Settlement Event cards: the cards used to abuse you every time you return to the settlement. You draw one a year from a shuffled deck.

Do I need to sleeve my game?

I wouldn't say need to, no. Many of us have invested a significant sum of money into this game though, and we're ok with spending a little bit more to help protect our investment!

Ok so I want to sleeve, but do I really need to sleeve all the different types of cards?

The only card types that are shuffled are the Game cards and Settlement Event cards. If you want to keep only shuffled cards safe then there's no need to sleeve Gear or Settlement Location cards.

Should I just get the KDM branded sleeves? That seems easiest

Honestly, I've got to say no, you shouldn't. They're extremely expensive (literally the highest price per sleeve of any manufacturer, period) and they aren't even high quality. There are a couple of threads you can read over for more information linked below, but really they're a terrible deal.

BGG thread about KDM sleeve quality

Reddit thread about KDM sleeve quality

Is the KDM core game sleeve bundle a good deal?

Eh not really. Just straight up buying the same number of sleeves from Mage is $5 cheaper, and other brands get even cheaper from there.

Why don't the Paladin sleeves have pricing?

Paladin doesn't currently sell single packs of sleeves, they've only been selling through kickstarter, so I don't have any per pack pricing! If they sell through a regular store I'll update their info.

I found a bug/incorrect information on this sheet. How should I contact you to correct it?

You can send me a message on Reddit (u/Taboobat) or send me an email (taboobat@gmail.com). And thanks for the help!

- [1] These are super rough numbers, many updates just said +cards! And there were no card counts for the gambler nemesis at all.

- [12] Thin sleeves, probably 40 micron. They'll feel cheap like all thin sleeves do, but provide decent protection. Way more expensive than the competition though.
- [13] Thin sleeves, probably 40 micron. They'll feel cheap like all thin sleeves do, but provide decent protection. Way more expensive than the competition though.
- [14] Mage sleeves have very good reviews and recently dropped in price. They're all 100 micron and high quality.

- [17] Mage sleeves have very good reviews and recently dropped in price. They're all 100 micron and high quality.
- [18] Swan premium, or "thick" sleeves are pretty nice, and on par with Mage. They don't have a listed thickness but it's probably 90 or 100 micron.
- [19] Swan standard, or "thin" sleeves are their budget option. They're still well made, but are definitely thinner. While I don't think they'll outright break they definitely don't feel as good.
- [20] Swan standard, or "thin" sleeves are their budget option. For gear cards I think it's not as relevant as they're never shuffled and rarely handled. Good way to save money.
- [21] Mayday standard sleeves are 40 micron. They should still hold up but Mayday has historically struggled with consistent sizing. They're still an ok option if you're on a tight budget.
- [22] FFG sleeves are quite nice, 100 micron and high quality. Quite expensive though.
