

The low notes in Notes:

2300 AD is on the low ball side of how far in the future Divergent is set according to the book.
 2164 AD is when the story is set according to moviemakers, but according to dates shown in the movies, it's set in the 3000s?

TIMELINE	EVENT	NOTES
-227 years ago	the Chicago experiment was started. Edith Prior joined the experiment.	8 generations ago mathematically so assuming 28.4 year generation time. See Allegiant, ch 22
-92 years ago	the Indianapolis experiment was started	3 generations + 8 years ago
-85 years ago	the Chicago experiment was reset	a "few" generations before Tris time, but also presumably had run for more than 3 generations at that point (longer than the Indianapolis experiment would end up running). So I'm estimating that the Chicago experiment had been running for 4 generations, and was reset 3 generations ago. It would also make sense that it was reset "after" the other experiments with factors and their control (Indianapolis)
50-60 years ago	Natalie, Andrew and Jeanine were born.	Andrew is one year younger than Natalie, and I would imagine that Jeanine is a year or two older than Andrew if she was already conducting unethical experiments before his relation. I mean, who knows, Erudite "killed" for the cause/started unethical experiments, but seems a bit weird. Still, Jeanine is probably not significantly older, if she and Andrew were "good friends".
19+ years ago	Natalie entered the Chicago experiment	Tris is 16. Caleb is closer to 17, and they claimed Natalie was 15 when she entered so she could have time to settle in for 1 year, presumably Natalie and Andrew didn't get started on having children until after transferring to Allegiant.
max 16 years ago	Erudite was led by Torin, who had previously started hunting Divergents.	Jeanine worked with Will's sister, Cara, before becoming a leader. Even if Cara was born while her and Will's parents were in their teens and Will was their evening star, their age difference is unlikely to be over 22 years. Cara is also said to not look old enough to be his mother, so most likely their age difference is less than 18 years. Additionally, Erudite leaders are no older than 55, yet 30 is young for a max -12 years ago	George was discovered as Divergent and Natalie helped him take his death.	Going by Amar being 21 in the last book, George probably shouldn't be much past his late 20s. If we say he's 28, then his initiation would have been 12 years ago. Tris could be "ten" years his senior, late 20s is a fairly typical age for ppl of east asian descent to start to get grey hairs.
-9 years ago	Erudite left Allegiant, led "Nosey"	Insurgent, Ch 2 contains Tris remembering Four being about 8 during Evelyn's funeral.
8 years ago	the Indianapolis experiment was disbanded as a failure
6 years ago	Mia became a Dauntless leader and made relations tougher
5 years ago	Dauntless started guarding the fence instead
5 years ago	Amar passed initiation
2 years ago	Four and Eric joined Dauntless.
1 year ago	Amar lured his death and ended the Chicago experiment.
	Eric became a Dauntless leader.

(For movieverse, various dates may be moved back, because Eric and Four are 24 -> they became Dauntless 6 years ago rather than 2)

- 1 Attack on test
 - 2 Choosing Ceremony, train jumping off the roof, tour
 - 3 Target practice + Punching bags
 - 4 At an WW, Christine or Moby, Eric makes Christine hang over
 - 5 Fight with Peter
 - 6 Focus Visit
 - 7 Tris vs Mira, Capture the Flag - "two days since my fight with Peter", "a week since (Tris and Caleb) were that close"
 - 8 Kicks throwing
 - 9 Last day of stage one - Fight with Moby
 - 10 Visiting Day, meetings, Peter stops climbing - "a week and half from [the Choosing Ceremony]/on Visiting Day", "the last week"
 - 11 CH day - Zip lining
 - 12 crown
 - 13 water tank, convo with Tris
 - 14 burnt at the stake
 - 15 showered in the ocean
 - 16 ferry bled to death
 - 17 shoot family
 - 18 shoot family again, workings, uriah shoots muffin on marlene's
 - 19 head, attack, convo with Tris was 4 days ago
 - 20 Tris landscape into
 - 21 At outside, Four's fears
 - 22 Luvani's fear landscape, visit to erudite
- Initiation Day, there could be more days between this and the visit to erudite bc during the landscape into Four says "So I suggest that you take the next week to consider your fears and develop strategies to face them."

Note	Ref	Source
“Half [of Dauntless are] at Erudite headquarters, half at Candor headquarters. What’s left of Abnegation is with us. Nothing much has happened yet. Except for whatever happened to you, I guess.” [<- so apparently it was a p clean 50/50 split for Erudite-allied Dauntless and non]	Dauntless	Insurgent
Factionless are 2x the size of Dauntless [population!]	factionless	Insurgent handshakes are a dauntless custom, possibly also candor? (christina and johanna, both candor transfers, have been shown offering handshakes, but it is also called a dauntless custom in insurgent)	Dauntless	Insurgent
Amity presumably hug, based on the scene where Johanna goes in for a hug when greeting Marcus.	Amity	Insurgent Abnegation greeted one another by bowing heads, a sign of respect.	Abnegation	Divergent?
Dauntless initiation lasts 2 weeks?!?!?!?!? nah def more--tris' initiation lasts 22-26 days. (a bit unclear, see timeline)	Dauntless	Four
Dauntless has more than 1 leader, always an uneven amount, nominated by shouting out a name	Dauntless	Insurgent
"Eric is as involved in initiation as he is because you refused to follow orders last year—" Last year, in the training room, I stopped all the fights before the injuries became too severe, against Eric's command that the fighting only stop when one person was unable to continue. I nearly lost my position as initiation instructor as a result; I would have, if Max hadn't gotten involved. "—and I wanted to give you another chance to make it right, with closer monitoring," Max says. "You're failing to do so. You've gone too far."	Dauntless, Max, Four, Eric	Four even when four & eric joined u needed a high enough score to become dauntless!	Dauntless	Four eric oversees most of the initiates' training, he is one out of 5 Dauntless leaders, training 8-18, break for lunch, free after 18, initiates can only leave accompanied by a dauntless, ranking determines job-choosing order	Dauntless, Eric	Divergent dauntless wouldnt switch around training on their own. dauntless dont do experiments, if they cared abt efficiency they'd not teach knives	Dauntless	Four?
dauntless HQ is a leaky cave, water damage happens all the time	Dauntless	Four Four: [...] maybe I never saw how frustrated he was to be second to a transfer from Abnegation, after all his hard work, or that I was favored by Max for leadership even when he was positioned here specifically to take the leadership role. [theorising or truth?]	Eric	Four most divergent get 2 results in the aptitude test. some only get one. to get 3, you'd have to refuse to choose at some point.	Divergents	Insurgent
The Dauntless have rules against attacking someone like that, but with people like Eric in charge, I suspect those rules go unenforced. [DO they have such rules?]	Dauntless	Divergent

“Quiet down, everyone!” shouts Eric. Someone hits what sounds like a gong, and the shouts gradually stop, though the mutters don’t. Eric says, “Thank you. As you know, we’re here because Albert, an initiate, jumped into the chasm last night.” [...] “We do not know why,” says Eric, “and it would be easy to mourn the loss of him tonight. But we did not choose a life of ease when we became Dauntless. And the truth of it is...” Eric smiles. If I didn’t know him, I would think that smile is genuine. But I do know him. “The truth is, Albert is now exploring an unknown, uncertain place. He leaped into vicious waters to get there. Who among us is brave enough to venture into that darkness without knowing what lies beyond it? Albert was not yet one of our members, but we can be assured that he was one of our bravest!” A cry rises from the center of the crowd, and a whoop. The Dauntless cheer at varying pitches, high and low, bright and deep. Their roar mimics the roar of the water. [...] “We will celebrate him now, and remember him always!” yells Eric. Someone hands him a dark bottle, and he lifts it. “To Albert the Courageous!” “To Albert!” shouts the crowd. Arms lift all around me, and the Dauntless chant his name. “Albert! Al-bert! Al-bert!” They chant until his name no longer sounds like his name. It sounds like the primal scream of an ancient race. [a similar scene in Four for Amar: This is Dauntless tradition.]	Dauntless	Divergent
One of Amar’s friends stands on a chair and shouts something meaningless about Amar being brave enough to explore the unknown. Everyone lifts their glasses and chants his name. Amar, Amar, Amar. They say it so many times that it loses all meaning, the noise relentless and repetitive and all-consuming. Then we all drink. This is how the Dauntless mourn: by chasing grief into the oblivion of alcohol and leaving it there.	Dauntless	Four
“What changed?” “The leadership. The person who controls training sets the standard of Dauntless behavior. Six years ago Max and the other leaders changed the training methods to make them more competitive and more brutal.” Six years ago, the combat portion of training was brief and didn’t include bare-knuckled sparring. Initiates wore padding. The emphasis was on being strong and capable, and on developing camaraderie with the other initiates. And even when I was an initiate, it was better than this—an unlimited potential for initiates to become members, fights that stopped when one person conceded. “Said it was to test people’s strength. And that changed the priorities of Dauntless as a whole. Bet you can’t guess who the leaders’ new protégé is.”	Dauntless	Four
Every Dauntless gets a certain amount of points to spend per month, and the dress costs one of them.	Dauntless	Divergent
“When does the fight end?” “It ends when one of you is unable to continue,” says Eric. “According to Dauntless rules,” Four says, “one of you could also concede.” Eric narrows his eyes at Four. “According to the old rules,” he says. “In the new rules, no one concedes.”	Dauntless	Divergent
“We didn’t even have guards near the fence until five years ago,” says Will. “Don’t you remember when Dauntless police used to patrol the factionless sector?” “Yes,” I say. I also remember that my father was one of the people who voted to get the Dauntless out of the factionless sector of the city. He said the poor didn’t need policing; they needed help, and we could give it to them. But I would rather not mention that now, or here. It’s one of the many things Erudite gives as evidence of Abnegation’s incompetence.	Dauntless, Abnegation, Erudite, factionless	Divergent

Four leads us toward the gate, which is as wide as a house and opens up to the cracked road that leads to the city. When I came here with my family as a child, we rode in a bus on that road and beyond, to Amity's farms, where we spent the day picking tomatoes and sweating through our shirts.	Amity, Abnegation, Tris, the fence	Divergent
If you don't rank in the top five at the end of initiation, you will probably end up here," says Four as he reaches the gate. "Once you are a fence guard, there is some potential for advancement, but not much. You may be able to go on patrols beyond Amity's farms, but—" "Patrols for what purpose?" asks Will. Four lifts a shoulder. "I suppose you'll discover that if you find yourself among them. As I was saying. For the most part, those who guard the fence when they are young continue to guard the fence. If it comforts you, some of them insist that it isn't as bad as it seems."	Dauntless, the fence	Divergent
[...] working in the control room, where the Dauntless monitor the city's security. It is difficult for me to imagine him there, surrounded by computers.	Dauntless	Divergent
The Dauntless have limited options. We can guard the fence or work for the security of our city. We can work in the Dauntless compound, drawing tattoos or making weapons or even fighting each other for entertainment. Or we can work for the Dauntless leaders. That sounds like my best option.	Dauntless	Divergent
It would be about 150 years in the future, but a hundred years after an event that caused all technological advances to stop. Burger and his production team would need to imagine fifty years from now, and then decide what might be left over a century after that. What kinds of structures could withstand that test of time? What could be created from the few remaining raw materials the people had?	Chicago, Timeline	Divergent movie official companion book
The story is set in Chicago, a city of millions of people, but in Roth's future city there are only about thirty thousand people.	Chicago	Divergent movie official companion book
They keep up the areas that they use, but then there's a vast area of the city which is kind of crumbling and falling apart. When we see the city, we just see people walking in the middle of the streets, because they don't have cars. There are a few trucks around, but mostly their transportation is on foot or on train.	Chicago	Divergent movie official companion book
Eventually, he came to the idea that there could be wind turbines on the sides of some buildings and power cables swooping between them.	Chicago	Divergent movie official companion book
Usually people have a regular fighting stance with their hands up—we wanted to do something that differentiated it. So we have the two hands folded in the front. We also worked on using a hammer fist rather than a regular punch. The hammer fist is supposed to be something that generates a little more velocity, a little more force—and also saves the bony prominences on your hand.	Dauntless	Divergent movie official companion book
To differentiate the groups within the faction, Poggioli came up with a set of colors to accent the black. Transfers, for instance, have orange accents, while Dauntless-born have red. Dauntless trainers have purple accents.	Dauntless	Divergent movie official companion book
The Dauntless guards close the gate and lock it behind them. The lock is on the outside. I bite my lip. Why would they lock the gate from the outside and not the inside? It almost seems like they don't want to keep something out; they want to keep us in.	the fence	Divergent

we run up the paths along the walls of the Pit, pushing past members on our way up. They don't seem surprised to see us. I wonder how many frantic, running people they see on a weekly basis.	Dauntless	Divergent so we walk east, toward the marsh that was once a lake. When I was young, I tried to imagine what it would look like as a lake, with no fence built into the mud to keep the city safe. But it is difficult to imagine that much water in one place.	Chicago	Divergent
I have realized that part of being Dauntless is being willing to make things more difficult for yourself in order to be self-sufficient. There's nothing especially brave about wandering dark streets with no flashlight, but we are not supposed to need help, even from light. We are supposed to be capable of anything. I like that. Because there might come a day when there is no flashlight, there is no gun, there is no guiding hand. And I want to be ready for it.	Dauntless	Divergent
North of the bridge the city is abandoned. South of the bridge, Michigan Avenue is a busy street, crawling with people, but here it is bare.	Chicago	Divergent teamwork used to be a dauntless value	Dauntless	Divergent?
I drop the dagger and it hits the dusty floor with a thud. [yes let's just DROP weapons like hot potatoes good job girl]	Tris	Divergent
"If by some miracle your families do come to visit you..." He scans our faces and smirks, "...which I doubt, it is best not to seem too attached. That will make it easier for you, and easier for them. We also take the phrase 'faction before blood' very seriously here. Attachment to your family suggests you aren't entirely pleased with your faction, which would be shameful. Understand?"	Dauntless, Eric	Divergent drinking fountain in the dauntless compound mentioned repeatedly	Dauntless	Divergent not supposed to be [at the gun range] after hours. [also the guns are just kept on a table. they specify they're not loaded but bro go tae fuck]	Dauntless	Divergent 39 is young for a leader in factions other than dauntless	Dauntless, Candor	Insurgent?
"No, I don't know," I say. "What crisis?" "The Erudite representative had just begun to kill the Divergent, of course," he says. "His name was Nor—Norman?" "Norton," says Matthew. "Jeanine's predecessor. Seems he passed on the idea of killing off the Divergent to her, right before his heart attack." "Thank you. Anyway, we sent Natalie in to investigate the situation and to stop the deaths. We never dreamed she would be in there for so long, of course, but she was useful—we had never thought about having an insider before, and she was able to do many things that were invaluable to us. As well as building a life for herself, which obviously includes you." I frown. "But the Divergent were still being killed when I was an initiate." "You only know about the ones who died," David says. "Not about the ones who didn't die. Some of them are here, in this compound. I believe you met Amar earlier? He's one of them. Some of the rescued Divergent needed some distance from your experiment—it was too hard for them to watch the people they had once known and loved going about their lives, so they were trained to integrate into life outside the Bureau. But yes, she did important work, your mother."	Erudite, Chicago, Bureau, Natalie, Jeanine, timeline	Allegiant
"When she first entered the city, it was as a Dauntless, because she already had tattoos and that would have been hard to explain to the natives. She was sixteen, but we said she was fifteen so she would have some time to adjust. Our intention was for her to . . ."	Natalie	Allegiant

Edith is explicitly an abnegation name, Joshua is NOT	Abnegation	Insurgent?
Indianapolis experiment disbanded 8 years ago. it lasted 3 generations.	Indianapolis, timeline	Allegiant
“The Choosing Ceremony was approaching, and your father was eager to leave Erudite because he saw something terrible—” “What? What did he see?” “Well, your father was a good friend of Jeanine Matthews,” says Zoe. “He saw her performing an experiment on a factionless man in exchange for something—food, or clothing, something like that. Anyway, she was testing the fear-inducing serum that was later incorporated into Dauntless initiation—long ago, the fear simulations weren’t generated by a person’s individual fears, you see, just general fears like heights or spiders or something—and Norton, then the representative of Erudite, was there, letting it go on for far longer than it should have. The factionless man was never quite right again. And that was the last straw for your father.”	Erudite, Jeanine, Andrew	Allegiant
The Dauntless taught initiates how to throw knives even before the changes to initiation that Max made before I joined them.	Dauntless	Four
[...] since the Purity War, over a century ago.	timeline, purity war	Allegiant
“Abnegation was about to reveal the truth to everyone inside the city. And you’ve seen what’s happened now that the city knows the truth: Evelyn is effectively a dictator, the factionless are squashing the faction members, and I’m sure the factions will rise up against them sooner or later. Many people will die. Telling the truth risks the safety of the experiment, no question,” Nita says. “So a few months ago, when the Abnegation were on the verge of causing that destruction and instability by revealing Edith Prior’s video to your city, the Bureau probably thought, better that the Abnegation should suffer a great loss—even at the expense of several Divergent—than the whole city suffer a great loss. Better to end the lives of the Abnegation than to risk the experiment. So they reached out to someone who they knew would agree with them. Jeanine Matthews.”	Bureau, Abnegation, Jeanine	Allegiant
David sits in a wheelchair, his legs covered in a stiff material—to keep the bones in place so they can heal, I assume. [no plaster casts in the city??]	Chicago	Allegiant
This is where the factionless live. Because they failed to complete initiation into whatever faction they chose, they live in poverty, doing the work no one else wants to do. They are janitors and construction workers and garbage collectors; they make fabric and operate trains and drive buses. In return for their work they get food and clothing, but, as my mother says, not enough of either.	Chicago, factionless	Divergent
“Your friend was correct in thinking that the map and the chart listed all of our safe houses,” she says. “He was wrong about the population counts . . . sort of. The numbers don’t document all the factionless—only certain ones. And I’ll bet you can guess which ones those are.” [...] “The Divergent. We’re documenting the Divergent.”	factionless	Insurgent
“Before the simulation attack, part of the Abnegation aid effort involved testing the factionless for a certain genetic anomaly,” she says. “Sometimes that testing involved re-administering the aptitude test. Sometimes it was more complicated than that. But they explained to us that they suspected we might have the highest Divergent population of any group in the city.”	Abnegation, factionless, timeline	Insurgent

“The Erudite are looking for manpower. They found it temporarily in Dauntless. Now they’ll be looking for more, and we’re the obvious place, unless they figure out that we’ve got more Divergent than any other group.”	Erudite, factionless	Insurgent
“‘Resetting’ is our word for widespread memory erasure,” David says. “It is what we do when the experiments that incorporate behavioral modification are in danger of falling apart. We did it when we first created each experiment that had a behavioral modification component, and the last one in Chicago was done a few generations before yours.” He gives me an odd smile. “Why did you think there was so much physical devastation in the factionless sector? There was an uprising, and we had to quell it as cleanly as possible.” I sit stunned in my chair, picturing the broken roads and shattered windows and toppled streetlights in the factionless sector of the city, the destruction that is evident nowhere else—not even north of the bridge, where the buildings are empty but seem to have been vacated peacefully. I always just took the broken-down sectors of Chicago in stride, as evidence of what happens when people are without community. I never dreamed that they were the result of an uprising—and a subsequent resetting.	Bureau, timeline, Chicago	Allegiant
Amity exchange friendship bracelets	Amity	Allegiant
Surnames are just an additional means of identification, useful only	Chicago	Insurgent
“I heard about [Divergence] when I was young,” she says in a reverent	divergents, candor	Insurgent
“My mom said to stay away from you because you might be dangerous	divergents, dauntless	Insurgent
“Dauntless headquarters has the most surveillance cameras of any	dauntless, erudite	Insurgent
“What happened?” “Same thing that happens every year,” someone	dauntless	Divergent
“Before [Jeanine] was a leader, she worked with [Will’s sister, Cara]	timeline, cara, jeanine	Divergent
Some of the initiates have already packed their things. Soon we’ll move	dauntless	Divergent
I chose a plain chicken breast, a scoop of peas, and a piece of brown	abnegation	Divergent
“I don’t think I could have made it through Candor initiation, though.	candor	Divergent
I have attended Abnegation’s initiation ceremony every year except	abnegation	Divergent
The other factions celebrate birthdays, but [Abnegation] don’t.	abnegation, amity, candor, dauntless, erudite, factionless	Divergent
“All five of our former leaders are Dauntless traitors,” says Tori.	dauntless	Insurgent
“Nose.” Uriah touches the side of his nose. “It’s a play on words. ‘Kris	dauntless, erudite	Allegiant
“The Amity are charged with administering the Abnegation serum to	amity, abnegation
“They know about as much as the Dauntless patrols,” says Marcus.	dauntless, amity, abnegation
I see Johanna, crouched beside a bush with a bowl in her hands, pi	amity, chicago
I [...] look out the window that faces the apple orchard. Johanna Re	amity, chicago
“Amity keeps a number of secrets,” Johanna says, and she sounds	amity
All the [Amity] buildings except the greenhouses are made of the same	Amity

I remember the rows of peanut plants in the Amity greenhouses. Th	Amity, Chicago, factionless
Anyway, [Jeanine] was testing the fear-inducing serum that was late	Dauntless, Jeanine, timeline	Allegiant
“[Tris' father] saw [Jeanine] performing an experiment on a factionle	Erudite, Jeanine, Norton, Andrew, timeline	Allegiant
...colorful bottles with shampoo or conditioner or vitamins or unfamil	Chicago	Allegiant
“The other greenhouses,” Johanna says. “They don’t require much manpower, but we grow and raise things in large quantities there—animals, raw material for fabric, wheat, and so on.” Their panes glow in the starlight, obscuring the treasures I imagine to be inside them, small plants with berries dangling from their branches, rows of potato plants buried in the earth. “You don’t show them to visitors,” I say. “We never saw them.”	Amity, Chicago	Allegiant
No fence or wall marks the divide between the Amity compound and the outer world, but I remember monitoring the Dauntless patrols from the control room, making sure they didn’t go farther than the limit, which is marked by a series of signs with Xs on them. The patrols were structured so that the trucks would run out of gas if they went too far, a delicate system of checks and balances that preserved our safety and theirs—and, I now realize, the secret the Abnegation kept.	Dauntless, Abnegation	Allegiant
[Cotton balls are mentioned multiple times, and jeans and denim each at least once: Amity presumably grows cotton for clothing.] [Or it could just be a linguistic carryover.][No it was confirmed in a deleted scene that at least one of Four’s shirts is cotton, lol]	Chicago, Amity	Various
“Sometimes I think I believe everything [Abnegation] taught us. But	Abnegation, Dauntless, Chicago
“I wonder what the Abnegation treat would have been, if they had or	Abnegation, Chicago
I dump some milk on top of my cereal and walk to my table.	Dauntless, Chicago
The medicine tastes like old lemon.	Chicago
He takes out a small bottle with clear, bubbling liquid in it, and as he twists open the cap, says, “I stole it from the Erudite kitchens. Apparently it’s delicious.” [so screw caps]	Chicago, Erudite
[Makeup mentioned: Lipstick, tweezers, blush, eyelash curlers, eyeliner.]	Chicago
I watch the dark, murky water [of the chasm] and the things it carries—pieces of trash, discarded clothing, floating bottles like small boats setting out on a journey	Dauntless
That standard will be an intelligence test, administered to all adults when the present leader reaches fifty-five or begins to decline in brain function in a demonstrable way	Erudite
[Jeanine, Andrew and Natalie’s age is max. 55 (since Jeanine is still the Erudite leader) and min. 41, bc 39 is young for a leader outside Dauntless and Jeanine was already leader during Four’s initiation]

Tobias is mixed race. His colouration is closer to Marcus' despite having a POC mother.	Tobias, Evelyn	Insurgent, Veronica Roth	VRoth elaborates on the topic here on her tumblr
When it comes to funerals, the Dauntless don't waste any time. Tori said they want to acknowledge death as soon as it happens.	Dauntless
At home, a funeral is a somber occasion. Everyone gathers to support the deceased's family, and no one has idle hands, but there is no laughter, or shouting, or joking. And the Abnegation don't drink alcohol, so everyone is sober.	Abnegation
He lost his mother when he was young. I don't remember how she died, just that we attended her funeral. Suddenly I remember him clutching the curtains in his living room, about nine years old, wearing gray, his dark eyes shut. The image is fleeting, and it could be my imagination, not a memory.	Tobias, Evelyn, timeline
The women's bathroom is two doors down. The floor is dark brown tile, and each shower stall has wooden walls and a plastic curtain separating it from the central aisle. A sign on the back wall says REMEMBER: TO CONSERVE RESOURCES, SHOWERS RUN FOR ONLY FIVE MINUTES.	Amity
I remember the funeral, with all the Abnegation filling our house with quiet chatter, staying with us in our grief. They carried us meals on metal trays, covered with tinfoil, and cleaned our kitchen, and boxed up all my mother's clothes for us, so there were no traces of her left.	Abnegation	Four
But I had a memory of [Evelyn], a few months before her death, standing in front of her dresser, buttoning up her loose second shirt over the tight undershirt, her stomach flat.	Abnegation	Four
I am the first Abnegation-Dauntless transfer in more than a decade.	Abnegation, Dauntless	Four
Before I exit the room, I unbutton my ripped long-sleeved shirt and let it fall on the ground. The gray T-shirt I am wearing beneath it is still oversized, but it's darker, blends in better with the black Dauntless clothes.	Abnegation	Four
"Two days ago the idiot I was on patrol with started freaking out, swearing he saw something out there. . . . Turns out it was a plastic bag" [they DO have plastic!]	Chicago	Four
And with each element of the Abnegation initiation ritual that follows	Abnegation	Defect, she said
All the factionless safehouses have bird names. Sparrow, Eagle, Cr	factionless	Defect, she said
Like pumpernickel bread or the black coffee a Candor offered me a	Candor, Abnegation	Defect, she said
[Tori has] just started on her coffee.	Dauntless
But when I go with Evelyn to Falcon House, in the city center, I see	factionless	Defect, she said
"You'll take her in," my mother said, and it wasn't a question, it was	Evelyn, Natalie	Defect, she said
Since the train traveled directly west of the city, we will have to walk	Amity	"That Wouldn't Be in the Spirit of the Game": Three Deleted Divergent Moments
My father cut my brother's hair every two weeks, and my mother dic	Abnegation	Insurgent Deleted Scenes!

In Abnegation, offering to cut a man's hair in place of his parents me	Abnegation	Insurgent Deleted Scenes!
I don't move back, but my hands press to it, and find a contour, find	Chicago	"That Wouldn't Be in the Spirit of the Game": Three Deleted Divergent Moments
"According to Dauntless law, only Dauntless leaders can perform an execution. All five of our former leaders are Dauntless traitors."	Dauntless		