1) Can I just send food to a hospital myself?

Hospitals have told us they would rather work with a select set of vetted restaurants to minimize logistical impact on the mounting and ever-increasing organized response to COVID.

2) Where do we have the food delivered to?

Go to the main hospital entrance. Let the people at the desk know the food is designated for the “emergency department” and you can specify the “emergency department Charge Nurse” as a contact person and it’ll get delivered to the right place no problem.

3) Requirements for restaurants

- Prepare simple food for 25-50 people. We will let you know how many orders based on the hospital it's going to that night.
- We are looking for food that is easy for people to grab and go. Fits a reasonably wide range of diets. Low waste so they don't have a lot of clean-up or mess.
- If the dishes require plates, utensils, etc you will need to provide those as well.
- You will need to be able to do your own delivery to the location. We'll give you the specified location and delivery instructions.
